Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Guthrie L. Turner, Jr. of Madigan Army Medical Center were honorees at the first reception and dinner affair to recognize deserving minority role models in the Tacoma community.

The evening activity was held at the Huntsman's Club and was sponsored by the "Tacoma Community Group." This organization is a collection of the following segments: Cabelleros Club; Tacoma Urban League, Inc.; Contessa Club; NAACP; the Tacoma Chapter of Links, Inc.; Clara Cox Heritage Club; Minority Musicians; Prince Hall Masons and American GI Forum Veterans Family Organization.

A spokesman for the "Tacoma Community Group" indicated that the purpose of the reception was "to officially welcome General and Mrs. Turner and their family to the Tacoma community." The representative continued, saying "There is a long history of cooperative and positive interaction between the Tacoma citizens and our military neighbors" while adding that "we would like to continue and build upon this positive relationship."

After the cocktail hour, the honorees, distinguished vistors and guests alike were cordially welcomed by Mrs. Raynola Blackshear. As Mistress of Ceremonies, she introduced members of the head table who included: Delores Silas, President, NAACP; Assistant City Manager and Mrs. Jim Walton; Lt. Joyce Hall; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Turner; Mayor Mike Parker, Carlton Tucker, Grand Master of Prince Hall Masons and Rev. and Mrs. Leo Brown.

Rev. Brown, vice president of the Ministerial Alliance, gave the invocation prior to beginning the dinner meal. Special dinner music on the piano was rendered by Mr. Ronie Gentry.

The entertainment for the evening was spectacular. Authentic, rhythmic dances delighted the guests for a dinner interlude. Thrilling the attendees was the youthful vibrant Jason Lee African Drum and Dance Ensemble.

Mayor Parker spoke about the important relationship of the military and the civilian community. He stressed the historic symbolism of opening the gates of the city to military neighbors. Parker culminated his comments by presenting Turner with the coveted key to the city.

Turner expressed his appreciation for the hospitality and honor extended to him and his wife. He commented on the value and strength of the "Tacoma Community Group" organization.

Mr. Sid Breckinridge represented the Cabelleros Club. He presented a bouquet of flowers on behalf of his organization to Mrs. Turner. Mrs. Leola Hill presented General Turner with a desk pen and pencil set. She represented the Contessa Club.

Mrs. Blackshear made closing remarks while thanking all who attended. She invited guests to remain for an informal fellowship with General and Mrs. Turner as well as members of their family in attendance.

Six Blacks Seek Council Seat

Harold Moss, former city councilman, Jenny Allen, former city employer, Bil Moss Lombard, Executive Director of Planned Parenthood of Pierce County, Chuck Horne, local businessman and defeated condidate for City Council, Harriet Williams, School District employee and defeated candidate for City Council, and Ethel Ruth Daniels, school teacher and member of Urban Policy Committee are six of 28 persons who have thrown their "Hat in the ring" for Doug Sutherland'sCity Council seat, which becomes vacated January 1 as he becomes the Mayor of Tacoma. This is the first time the screening committee will have this many Blacks to choose from. Each person will be interviewed by a 3 person screening committee (three council persons) Then the City Council members will vote as to who the choice will be based on committee recommendations.

Harold Moss was the only Black to have sat on the council - he was appointed then ran and was elected to one term - he resigned due to an Urban League (National) policy about employees participation in politics - This will be a step upward for blacks in Tacoma if they can get a person appointed.

HUD HAS NEW DIRECTOR

Terrance R. Duvernay, 38, has assumed his new position as Deputy Regional Administrator of the U.S Department of Housing and Urban Development's Region X Office in Seattle. Duvernay comes to his new position in Seattle from New Orleans, Louisianna, where he was manager of the HUD Area Office in that city.

A New Orleans native, Duvernay began his career with HUD in 1978 as a consultant to former HUD Secretary Patricia R. Harris. Shortly thereafter, he returned to New Orleans as Area Manager of the local HUD office. He was again called to HUD's Washington, D.C. Central Office in 1979 to serve as Executive Assistant to former HUD Secretary Moon Landrieu, returning to New Orleans as Area Manager at the conclusion of that assignment.

Duvernay began his urban affairs career in 1969 with the New Orleans Model Cities Program, rising to Deputy Director by 1971. In 1973, he was named Assistant Chief Administrative Officer for the City of New Orleans, and three years later was promoted to Chief Administrative Officer, a position he held until 1978.

Educated in New Orleans public schools, Duvernay graduated with honors from Billard University in 1964 with a major in sociology. From 1964 to 1968, as a National Institute of Health Fellow, he pursued a PhD in sociology at Tulane University.

Duvernay has long been active in civic affairs, having served on numerous boards and volunteer organizations; among them, the Urban League, New Orleans Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation and the YMCA. He is past president of the National Community Development Association and a former member of the International City Management Assoc.

The new Deputy Regional Administrator is married and has two children, a son and a daughter.

Operation: We Can Stop Hunger

OPERATION: We Can Stop Hunger, a consortium of anti-hunger organizations and concerned corporate citizens, will launch an aggressive food drive for needy residents of Pierce County.

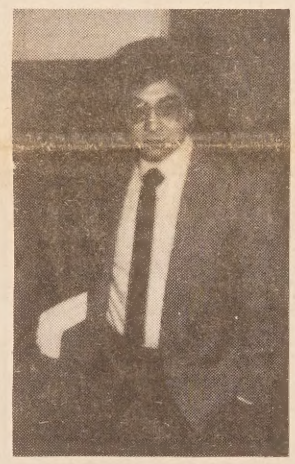
Food donation boxes will be placed in every Safeway supermarket located in Pierce County beginning December 9. The public will be encouraged, through public service announcements, to contribute canned goods or commercially packaged food items. Contributions deposited in the 17 supermarkets will then be picked up weekly and delivered to food bank distribution centers by personnel of Coors of Tacoma.

"This is the first time that a network of 18 Pierce County food banks and emergency food center have combined efforts with corporate and trade support," Theresa Simmons, Metropolitan Development Council, said. "Incredible as it may sound, approximately 20,000 to 30,000 people are in need of food monthly," she said.

OPERATION: We Can Stop Hunger has proven successful in King County where it has collected more than six tons of food within the first two weeks of the campaign. Adolph Coors Company intends to expand the project to other counties within the state. Food bank organizations and retail outlets are presently being approached as to starting a similar program.

The Pierce County food drive is supported by Metropolitan Development Council, Pierce County Alliance, Coors of Tacoma, Inc., Safeway Stores, Inc., Weyerhaeuser Company and King Broadcasting Company.

THA Hearings



John Chen Beckwith

Grievances against the Tacoma Housing Authority were officially brought before the Board of Commissioners by Attorney John Beckwith of Seattle, on behaLF OF Hezekiah Gilven, former Deputy Director of THA ad Steve Hanson, former Manager of Planning Development and Evaluation at two consecutive hearings this week. Beckwith argued that the board failed to comply with not only the THA rules and regulations for the elimination of the position, but also the [illegible] federal government.

Budgetary cuts was cited [illegible] basis for the elimination of [illegible] management position, three [illegible] which were held by Blacks.

A letter of termination disclosed that the layoffs were in no way reflecting their performance however, Beckwith reminded the board of the insinuations made at previous meetings th at the problems existing in the Salashan community were due to the absence of Gilven's ability to handle the day to day problems his job called for.

He said that perhaps the fiscal budgetary crisis was not the real reason. The fiscal reason was only a suspect and not proven to be the real cause for the elimination and therefore added up to a prima facies case of discrimination.

Beckwith said that a 1981-1982 budget had been adopted by the board and approved by HUD for the entire fiscal year and there was no evidence of a possible fiscal crisis.

According to Beckwith, the board should have reviewewd and evaluated the elimination of these positions-the decision appears to be bordered on arbitrariness and therefore violated the rights of the four employees.

Beckwith accused the board of failure to examine other alternative decisions on cutting the budget. THA attorney Terrence McCarthy, challenged Beckwith by asking him how did he know that any member of the board did not conduct an extensive investigation on the matter. Beckwith responded saying that if this is the case, no mention of it appeared in any of the minutes or transcripts of any of the meetings of the board. During Steve HaNSON'S HEARING, Lily Piva, Chairperson of the board, retaliated to comments of Phil Miner, a member of the Executive Board of the NAACP, as he questioned the competence of the board by casliing him a creep and urging him to drop dead.

Beckwith demanded that THA restore their jobs and compensate them for the damage to their good name and emotional stress on them and their families as well

ANOTHER WAR ON CRIME

By Vernon Jordan

If crime didn't exist, politicians would have to invent it, for there is nothing more rewarding politically than a fresh announcement of a "war on crime."

A new war on crime seems about to get off the ground, with get-tough speeches by Chief Justice Warren Burger and President Reagan, and a Justice Department report that recommends, among other things, weakening of constitutional protections and building more prisons.

Justice's Task Force on Violent Crime specifically suggested a $2 billion grant program to help the states construct new prisions. And several states plan to float bond issues for prision construction.

Somehow a nation that claims to be unable to afford decent social service benefit levels is supposed to come up with the money to finance prisons. A nation whose inner-city housing stock is deteriorated and is being abandoned, is supposed to build prisons that cost about $70,000 per bed just for construction, with up to $20,000 per year in maintenance costs per individual. And that princely sum doesn't allow for inflation.

Talk about misplaed national priorities!

Buying more prisons won't buy more security. If anything, our experience with prisons suggests they do not deter people from committing crimes. Indeed, they serve to warehouse people in brutalizing conditions, leading to the increased likelihood that they will return to custody once released.

That raises another point neglected by the get-tough-with-crime advocates. You can arrest, convict and imprison people. But ultimately, they will serve their time and return to the community.

Unless they are helped to overcome the lack of skills, anti-social attitudes and limited opportunities that helped land them in trouble, they are likely to continue to swell the crime rate.

Nor do the hard liners have much to say about keeping your people from the lure of criminal activities. Apparently they would rather build prisons at luxury-hotel construction rates than invest in the education and job opportunities that give economically deprived young people a stake in stable, crime-free communities.

A lot of the old bromides are also being hauled out in this year's version of the war on crime. Preventive detention sounds like a good idea until you realize that there is no way a judge can predict the likelihood of an accused person's turning up for trial.

Without hard evidence that accurate predictions can be made--and all studies indicate the contrary, especially when applied to blacks--we shouldn't weaken the governing assumption of our legal system that an accused person is innocent until proven quity.

The same holds for the so-called exclusionary rule, which the Task Force wants weakened. That rule prevents ilelgally obtained evidence from being used in a criminal trial, and it is based on Fourth Amendment protections against illegal search and seizure.

The exclusionary rule keeps law enforcement agents "honest," since they know they have to go by the book or lose their case in court. But it does more than that, too. It protects all citizens from arbitrary police behavior, it increases respect for the law, and it removes incentives for law enforcement officials to abuse their power.

Weakening the exclusionary rule will not add to the conviction rate. Despite a handful of publicized, extreme cases few people have escaped a guilty verdict because of it. Again, this is an instance where a precious constitutional right should not be compromised to satisfy a purely rhetorical get tought stance.

Outside Looking In

As a person who believes strongly in citizen participation in all levels of government, Housing Authority board member lily Piva has soured my beliefs. She wishes to give the impression of a person who champions the rights of the poor folk regardless of color. Yet all of her actions and words uttered in public labels her as a person who is not particularly fond of Black folk. From her remarks to Tom Dixon, President of the Tacoma Urban League, about how she didn't have to answer to him;only to the people she represented. Furthermore, to the point of telling NAACP Board member Philip Miner, in essence that he is a creep and should drop dead is just too much. As a taxpayer and part owner of the housing autority, I don't see the need for paying an attorney to sit by and let a lay person fumble through a very touch and go legal situation (which the hearing was)and where every word uttered there can be used as evidence in a court of law. I didn didn't mind Ms. Piva not answering any questions asked by this reporter, that is her right as an individual, but as a board member the public has a right to know what is going on.

Another thought on the Housing Authority is the proposed meeting that supposedly fizzled last Friday, that was a big boo boo in noncommunication - Carlton B. Tucker, Grand Master of Prince Ahall Masons told me tha t he w a s n t interested in individual jobs as such, that he was concerned about the process, lest it happen again - he felt the open hearings were a good idea and once the facts became known justice would prevail. Some how we have to start reading between the lines in a lot of printed material that is published.

Who is up for City Council seat??? Watch the political manuevers - Now you see it now you don't!!!

I am still watching with interest the SBA (Small Business Administration) appointment in Region X.

Seems to be an increase in hate literature being passed out at certain schools - the latest is a Hunting Guide (Regulations for Western Washington - which is very derrogatory to Blacks. This was forwarded to me by the Mother of a Wilson High School student. I turned it over to NAACP. It's signed the Klu Klux KlaN, MAY BE TRUE BUT I doubt it. I th ink this is just a symptom of the disease racism which rears its head any time the economy turns downward.

DAVID WOFFORD OF SPYRO GYRA

There are many musicians who can prove their abilities onstage and in the recording studio, but bassist David Wofford of the MCA recording act Spyro Gyra (whose latest hit album is Freetime) not only has extensive experience on sessions and the road, but a college degree to certify his musical mastery. although Wofford first entered Hartford University as a liberal arts student, his love of music soon led him to the school's Hart College of Music, where he studied with noted saxophonist Jackie McLean. Later, Wofford also studied with jazz great Thad Jones at New Jersey's William Paterson College. As anyone who hears David with Spyro Gyra knows, he learned his lessons well, playing some of the smartest bass around.

To Be Equal

All the talk about building more prisons and drilling holes in the constitutional safety net avoids the real issue of attacking the causes of crime.

A society that has full employment, equal opportunities, decent education and housing for all, and eliminates discrimination will be a society that is relatively crime-free.

Reagan Is Master Of Old Ploy: Using Blacks Against Blacks

The Reagan Administration's negative position on affirmative action, voting rights, and civil rights in general is widely known. What has not surfaced until recently is his use of conservative Blacks to play the role of hatchet men in watering down or doing away with agencies and programs that have the welfare of minorities as their primary objective.

One of the earliest instances of using a Black in such a role occurred at the U.S. Department of Transportation where a plan to reorganze the civil rights offices within agencies would have diluted their effectiveness. The reorganization would have placed civil rights offices under the office of personnel in each agency of DOT.

We learned of this plan last August and sent Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis a letter informing him of our concern. I told Secretary Lewis that the reorganization, if implemented, would obviously subordinate activities of the civil rights offices to personnel offices, and adversely affect their functions.

Lewis responded in a letter telling me that the Transportation Department would continue the arrangement under which the heads of civil rights offices report directly to the heads of departmental organizations. "We have no plans to locate our civil rights functions under our personnel offices," Lewis told me in writing.

Now, in November, comes the firing of Arthur Flemming, a former secretary of health, education and welfare (under Dwight Eisenhower), who had chaired the U.S. Civil Rights Commission for Presidents Nixon, Ford, and Carter. However, Flemming who perceived his job as that of an independent, was too serious about his position for the Reagan team.

The 76-year-old Flemming is white. He has supported affirmative action programs, has insisted that busing is a phone issue attacked by those who still favor school segregation, and he supports the extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Of course, Reagan wants to weaken the Voting Rights Act.

Picked to replace Flemming is Clarence Pendleton, director of the San Diego Urban League. Pendleton has been described as a black conservative who, like the President who appointed him, objects to affirmative action programs.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission also has felt the brunt of the Reagan hatchet men. The President nominated William M. Bell of Detroit, 55, to head EEOC. Bell, described as a black businessman, has no legal experience, no civil rights experience, and no noticeable track record as a businessman. He reportedly is the only employee of his current organization, Bold Concepts, Inc.

Bell's qualification for the EEOC job, oddly enough, was not his blackness. Instead, it was his support of Reagan in the presidential campaign. This was noted by fellow journalist Carl Rowan who said: "Give Bell six months as head of EEOC and every member of Congress would find reason to say, 'EEOC is a disaster!' Goodbye, EEOC!"

Reagan literally wiped out the Community Services Administration, a scaled down version of the old Office of Equal Opportunity.

We shouted our alarm over Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan's announcement in August of the Administration's plans to permit 150,000 of the 200,000 firms with government contracts to bypass formal affirmative action programs and guidelines.

I repeat now what I said upon learning of the plan: "What President Reagan is planning will take us another step backward into the eighteenth century. This is without a doubt a retreat in social justice."

And the retreat goes on!

Rotate Contents Of your Freezer

So you've just discovered a frozen turkey that's been lurking in the back corner of your self-defrosting freezer the past four years. Is it still okay to eat?

It probably is unless the self-defrosting unit warmed up the turkey, says Joanne Ross, Washington State University's Pierce County Extension agent.

However, it may taste rancid, may be tough and also suffer some nutritive loss. Joanne suggests serving it in a stew instead of roasting it to overcome the lack of tenderness.

She also advises you thaw it in the refrigerator. Don't get impatient. Depending on the size of the bird, it may take several days to thaw it out.

In the future, date everything you put in the freezer and keep an inventory of the freezor's contents. If your freezer is located in the garage, basement or an unheated room, you may want to keep the inventory in the kitchen. It's a lot easier to jot changes on your list if your fingers don't have to cope with frosty temperatures.

Rotate the contents of your freezer so the oldest items, in terms of storage, are located in the front. Use them first.

As a guideline, use any preserved foods (including canned and dried, as well as frozen) within 12 months for maximum quality, flavor and nutritive value. Some itmes, especially cut up meats and pultry, should be used sooner.

Scriptures

Psalms
121

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; he that keepeth thee will not slumber. The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. The Lord shall preserve thee from evil; he shall preserve thy soul. The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.

Christmas Concerts

The First United Methodist Church of Tacoma, at 423 South K street, will present two special Christmas concerts next week. On Sunday, Dec. 20, at 7:45 p.m., the Sanctuary Choir, soloists, and organist will present nostalgic carols and anthems. A short dramatization of "The Gift of the Magi" will be featured. A free will offering will be taken. On Tuesday, Dec. 22, at noon, Dr. R. Byard Fritts, church organist, will present a Brown Bag Pipe Organ Concert, no admission charg and beverages will be provided.

Musical

Altheimer Memorial is sponsoring its Annual Musician's Appreciation at Altheimer Memorial, 1121 South 12th Saturday evening at 8 p.m.

Choirs have been invited from all over Tacoma and Seale.

The major honorees are Arnold Myers, President and outstanding director who is quite capable and talented in his field...James Brown, an accomplished organist and piano player who uses his versatility with his fleet of fingers...Lenten Weems who is anointed of God to play the piano. Self taught with the eyes and hears for music...Master James Boggan, a young man whose ability to play the drums belies his years...Paul Fuller and Michael Cole, the bass guitar and lead guitar players respectively. These men are also anointed and blessed by God.

We are grateful for these musicians and Mrs. R.E. Altheimer delights in taking time each year to say a specal thank you. The Annual Musician's Appreciation was started by "N*na" and our late founder Bishop R.E. Altheimer one of many ways they have express their love for people everywhere. N*na is inviting Tacoma to come and help her celebrate this event.

Message To The Youth

by Deacon Charles Hill Sr.

Young people, drinking and doping will bring you to an early grave, before the age of twenty-one. Young people, this isn't funny, while you are young and in your right mind, you better cease our folly and let Jesus direct your pathway. He is yet sitting on the throne of grace, saying come, take heed and come arunning. Come and feast for the table is spread Come and eat, drink, and yet without price. you don't have anything to lose but yourself. Give up your smoking and doping because if you continue the way you are now without Jesus on your side, just dying isn't all. Because after death the judgement and man if you have been bad, and failed to do as God had so commanded you. You are talking about an unwanted Bar B Q gathering. A whole lot of disobedient self-rightous folks will be burning. You talk about a roasting in the fire there will be a lot of smoking going on and it won't be no cigarette smoking. But your sould will be tormented day and night.

Young people, don't throw your life away. God loves you. Why don't you give him your all today? Fail to do so, and you might not make it as far as I did. I am forty-three now, but my health isn't the best. I am sorry I ever saw a cigarette. Knowing that smoking and drinking is a short cut to that other world and not that world of pleasure either. You see, I learned the hard way. I learned that LSD is not the ticket you see for a safer journey Jesus has the recipe, so all you thrill seekers, that are searching for that trip, out into space. Now if you seek Jesus, man you are so far out and really hip. LSD, Marijuana and speed are a one way ticket to the grave. If you don't take heed the devil will tell you that L.S.D. is the thing.

Young people, don't let the devil fool you saying that your parents are mean to you. Don't getstrung out on drugs because you see, the things that I did, the many things I saw of the ones that were smoking and drinking. It didn't do them any good. But still man will try anything that will keep others from calling him a coward. You know something just as God has opened the human races ears to discipline and thus commanded that we all return from our iniquity and if we all obey him and serve him He promises that we will then spend our days in prosperity and our years in pleasures. But some of us rather choose our own way of thinking.

Stay away from LSD And all other dope, they are harmful, to your health, and to recover from their use, is very little hope. Now if you want something, that will give you a thrill puff up and dope up on Jesus and get your kick on Golgatha Hill. Why drive on LSD Avenue when you can cruise on the Holy Ghost Freeways that can cruise in that world of tomorrow. But the uses of drugs will cause you to make your bed in the cold cold clay When drugs hit your community, many good things will turn into one big mess. But with Jesus in your community, you will have a community at its very best. But if you fail to take heed, the preachers are not to blame for they have warned you.

Tat drug abuse can endanger your health night and day they warned you in Jesus name. So while you are in your right mind, brother you better make a change, because injecting drugs in your veins, you are playing a loosing game. You might say you have nerve problems and you cannot relax. Jesus can give you a fix, all you have to do is just ask. Then you will knw where the true flavor lies, only when you dope up on CHRIST.

Thank You

Visiting Tacoma were Mr. & Mrs. Crawford L. Johnson of Oakland, California. The parents of Virginia Taylor.

Mr. Johnson is retired 1st Vice President of Food and Commercial Workers. They are members of Beth Eden Baptist Church in Oakland, California. They found some long lost friends from Louisiana Mr. & Mrs. Green and spent Sunday morning at Bethlehem baptist Church. They wish to thank all the nice people in Tacoma for an enjoyable stay.

TABERNACLE MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH, 2801 S. Jackson St., Revival Dec. 13, 7:30 pm nightly. The pastor and members take great pride in extending this special invitation to all churches and the general public to share in this revival. We have been blessed to have one of the greats. None other than the Rev. Dr. William J. Shaw, pastor of the White Rock Baptist Church of Philadelphia, Pa.

Rev. Shaw has the anointing of God and as a result all of his messages feed the soul. You owe it to yourself to hear this man of God. Rev. C.E. Henderson.

SIR WILFRED GRENFELL

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

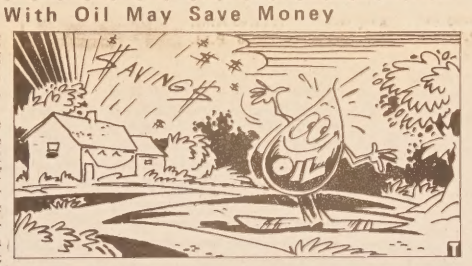
Heating With Oil May Save Money

If you are now heating with oil and are considering conversion to natural gas, you should think twice, experts recommend.

Edgar G. E. Morgan, vice president for fuel oil of the National Oil Jobbers Council (NOJC), representative of the nation's heating oil distributors believes the public has been misled into thinking that conversion from oil to gas heat is the best answer to the escalating price of all types of fuel.

Expensive conversion to natural gas can be in reality, a false economy. The next few years may prove that despite the current situation, decontrol and supply factors will add considerably to the price of natural gas.

In the uncertain, fluctuating fuel market, prices of both gas and oil supplies tend to rise. Inflation is driving up the cost of nearly every product and service. Supply problems have been solved through hard work on everyone's part. Pricing problems, it appears, can be solved with the same determination and hard work.



Oil heat belongs at home. Practicing conservation can save heating dollars.

Some conservation tips from the experts at NOJC that could save you money while reducing the consumption of the nation's vital fuel supply are:

* Replace your oil burner with a high-speed flame retention burner. This new technology produces a flame that is hotter, and more compact, and yields a combustion efficiency reflected in heat savings. Sold for $350 to $450, including installation, these burners can save you 16 to 30 percent and pay for themselves in about two years.

* To assure burner efficiency, have your burner cleaned. Removing soot and sealing the unit prevents excess air from entering the combustion chamber.

* Set back your thermostat, especially when the family is asleep or when no one is at home. A thermostat equipped with a timing device can automatically raise the temperature before you awake or return home. Result: savings without loss of comfort.

Malcolms Sports Report

I am talking about Don James, Coach of the Washington Huskies. A man who has turned around the U.W. Football Program. In the five years he has been there, they have gone four of the five to post season play. 1 Sun Bowl 3 Rose Bowls, including this year. He is 2 and 1 not bad. He does things so quiet. Like everybody was looking at U.S.C. and Washington State came on strong to go to the Rose Bowl. But when it came down to the get down they beat them both,now that is quiet!!! He has a excellent recruiting program. Look at all of Pierce County's talent they have, especially "Tacoma" The Ant Bed of Football. Seahawks (27) Jets (24) Prediction: Jacob Green keeps playing the defense and Theodis Brown the offense, Seattle will win their next two games. "check it out Mack".

The Wilson Rams won the High School Hoop Go Round last week. But I am still picking the Stadium Tigers to win the League. The winners in the Junior High circuit was Gray, Stewart, Hunt, Gault and Truman. I was very impressed with the play of David Bonds of Hunt and the guard play of Bo Brown and Lino Davis of Truman. These two young men are going to put a new era in Junior High Basketball. They steal the ball better than anybody I have seen in a very long time. Truman is still my pick to win the Junior high League. They won their debut 83-37 over meek meeker. Boo had (16) and (15).

I want to apologize to the Shugduff pool teams for not writing anything abut the defending champions. I will be checking you guys out.

If you have any questions or answers, drop me a line

SEAHAWKS FACE AFC WEST LEADING BRONCOS AT MILE HIGH STADIUM

KIRKLAND, WA -- The Seattle Seahawks will travel to Denver to meet the AFC West leading Broncos Sunday in a 1 pm PST contest at Mile High Stadium.

The Seahawks, led by second-year quarterback Dave Krieg, are coming off a 27-23 win over the New York Jets, while the Broncos, led by 17 year veteran Craig Morton defeated Kansas City, 16-13 last week.

Seattle heads into the game with a 5-9 record against the 9-5 Broncos, but one of their wins was a 13-10 decision over Denver earlier this year at the Kingdome.

Krieg, a free agent from 300-agent from 300 student Milton College in Milton, Wisconsin, completed 20 of 26 for 264 yards with two touchdowns against the Jets.

There are plenty of plays Krieg made that standout from last week's win like a seven-yard touchdown to Sam McCullum on his first pass attempt of the game...the winning touchdown, a 57 yard pass to Steve Largent...a 29 yard scramble upfield and out of bounds...and a one yard quarterback sneak for a touchdown.

But one play neither Patera nor Krieg will probably ever forget was a five yard scramble. Krieg didn't slide or run out of bounds on his first carry of the game--he tried to run over linebackers Greg Buttle and Stan Blinka.

"He is crazy," said Patera after the game. "He has got to learn that this isn't Milton College. He was bigger than some of the defensive linemen at Milton."

Krieg says he learned a valuable lesson.

CANCER Answer line
American Cancer Society

A 12-year-old girl writes: "Two months ago my father died from cancer and I would like to devote my life to cancer research. Where do I begin?"

ANSWERline: Many famous cancer researchers became motivated when cancer struck a loved one. Dr. Henry Kaplan, Director of Stanford University's Cancer Biology Research Laboratory, who has been a pioneer in the successful treatment of cancer of the lymph system, decided on a medical career with a specialty in cancer when he was in high school and his father died of lung cancer. Dr. Robert Gallo, a specialist in the study of cancer viruses, entered medicine because, when he was a boy of 13, leukemia claimed his sister. For more information, speak to the people at your local American Cancer Society Unit. The ACS will be able to advise you of the many different kinds of careers in the cancer fight and how to prepare for them. Good luck.

A travel agent asks: "How could a virus turn a normal cell into a cancer cell?"

ANSWERline: That is a crucial question in cancer research today because we know that certain viruses are capable of causing cancer in animals. The mechanism of viral transformation is being studied in scores of laboratories around the world utilizing the most exacting and sophisticated scientific methods. It is theorized that a virus, which contains essential hereditary matter, enters the hereditary matter in the nucleus of a normal cell. The cell then has a new set of genetic instructions which cause it to reproduce in an uncontrolled manner. The virus question is being studied from many different research viewpoints. For example, investigators are trying to recover viral particles from cancer cells while other investigators are looking for biological "fingerprint" clues that a virus was once present in a cell that becomes cancerous. The final answers to your question must come from research.

TOY SAFETY CAMPAIGN

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission today issued guidelines that holiday shoppers can follow to help insure that the toys they buy will be safe for the child intended. The guidelines are based upon one central message: buy the right toy for a child based upon his or her age, skill and ability.

The guidelines are being promoted this holiday season through a nationwide Toy Safety Campaign, sponsored jointly by CPSC and the Toy Manufacturers of America, the toy industry trade association. Unlike past campaigns, however, the 1981 effort will also involve members of the U.S. Congress and their spouses. Congress persons are being asked to use their network of district offices to get information on toy safety to shoppers at the local levels.

Co-chairpersons of the campaign are two Nancys -- Mrs. Nancy Thurmond, wife of Senator Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) and Mrs. Nancy Harvey Steorts, CPSC Chairman.

According to CPSC, there are over 150,000 toy products on the market. Making the proper selection of a toy sometimes is a difficult decision for consumers. Although certain children's products are required to meet mandatory federal safety specifications, serious accidents can occur if toys are not selected with the right child in mind or used under adult supervision.

Based upon hospital emergency room reports monitored by CPSC in 1980, more than 329,000 children under the age of 15 were hurt while riding their bicycles. Another 30,000 children under 15 were injured through the use of sleds. Accidents involving skates accounted for 80,000 injuries to kids under 15; another 31,200 injuries resulted from using skateboards.

CPSC also estimates that every year, between 125,000 and 130,000 children receive injuries requiring hospital emergency room treatment from accidents involving toys.

The following are CPSC's guidelines for selecting a safe toy: of the individual child. Toys intended for children under eight years must meet more stringent federal safety requirements than toys designed for older children. Toys intended for children under three by law cannot include any parts small enough to be swallowed or to become lodged in a child's windpipe, ears or nose.

Be a label reader. Look for and heed age recommendations, such as "Not recommended for children under three." Look for other safety labels such as "Flame retardant/Flame resistant."

Make sure that all instructions are clear to you--and when appropriate, to the child.

Discard plastic wrappings on toys immediately, before they become deadly playthings.

Toys with long strings or cords are not recommended for infants and very young children because they can cause strangulation.

Arrows or darts used by children should have soft cork tips, rubber suction cups or other protective tips. Check to be sure the tips are secure.

When buying toy guns and caps, be wary of those that can produce sounds at noise levels that can damage hearing. Federal law requires this warning on boxes of caps producing loud noises: "WARNING - Do not fire closer than one foot to the ear. Do not use indoors." It is recommended that children too young to understand this warning not be given these caps.

CPSC also recommends the following steps to promote toy safety in the home:

Check all toys periodically for breakage and potential hazards. A toy that cannot be repaired should be thrown away immediately.

Teach children to put their toys safely away on shelves or in other storage areas after playing to prevent trips and falls. Many accidents occur when toys are left out causing someone to fall.

Take care to explain to children how to use their toys properly and how to take care of them.

Keep toys designed for older children out of the hands of little ones. Chemistry sets, hobby items and toys with small parts can be extremely dangerous if used by younger children.

Never hang toys with long strings, cords, loops or ribbons in cribs or playpens where children can become entangled.

UNDERSTANDING MENTAL HEALTH PROBLEMS

Before describing the causes and warning signs of mental health problems, we must keep two important facts in mind. First of all, it is important to understand that mental illness is just an illness. It is not a curse or a punishment for being bad, but instead a sickness that needs attention. What makes it so difficult for us to accept mental illness is the shame attached to it by this society. We try to pretend that it can't exist in ourselves, our family, or community. At the same time we shun those who are sick and need our understanding. The second fact that we must keep in mind is the very broad range of mental health problems. While some people may have very minor problems needing only short-term counseling, some have moderate problems and others have severe problems that may result in hospitalization.

The causes of mental health problems are many. A person's biological make-up, family upbringing, relationships with others and traumatic experiences can have an influence on his mental health. In addition, anything that creates stress has the potential to produce mental health problmes. Stressful situations are common to everyone and include such events as starting a new job, the loss of a loved one, physical illness, or even buying a home. Sometimes personal, family, and job conflicts can create enough stress and tension to disrupt normal funcitoning in everyday life. Generally, any one of the above situations can cause mental health problems, but usually it is a combination of events.

We are not helpless to those events or stresses that cause mental health problems. Each of us have methods of coping that protect us from the stress and help release painful feelings. But when the stress becomes too great for some people, their coping methods can fail, leaving them vulnerable to mental health problems.

When a person is having mental health problems, a number of warning signs may become apparent. One person may have unexplained crying spells, lose interest in his job and family, have problems sleeping, or even feel so hopeless about life that he thinks about committing suicide. Another person may have an unreasonalbe fear or uneasiness about his world, feel that he is "losing control", have difficulty in concentrating and suffer from a number of physical discomforts, such as rapid heart beat, irregular breathing or dizziness. Still another person may have drastic swings in their mood, seem confused, hear and see things that others can't, or withdraw from those around them. Please remember that some of these signs are a normal part of life, becoming signs of trouble when they are severe or prolonged. When you are aware of any combination of these signs in yourself or someone close to you, it is best to seek help as soon as possible.

Although significantly fewer minorites seek mental health treatment, the problem for some still exists. Language and employment barriers, cultural adjustment, isolation, and other issues can place additional stress on the minority community. Certainly, the close-knit family structure provides for many needs of its members, but if there are problems which the family cannot solve alone, there are places that can help the individual or the family regain its strength. To seek outside help and reveal problems to a stranger may seem very strange or frightening at first. This is a common feeling among many of those coming to a mental health center for the first time, yet many can overcome that feeling and receive the much needed help.

Coping

Body Language

By Dr. Charles W. Faulkner

Did you know that your behavior can indicate what you are thinking? Often, your body may be a better, more accurate guide to your feelings and emotions than anything you say. A person can look at you and, often, know exactly what your mood is.

This way of communicating with your behavior is sometimes called "body language." Body language is not a science and the same behavior of two people does not always mean the same thing. However, you can use behavior as a general guide to a person's personality.

The face is the most obvious indicator of feelings. Wide-opened eyes usually indic fear or hostility. When the teeth are tightly clenched and the eyebrows wrinkly, you can be certain that the subject is angry.

Did you ever notice that a person who wants to ignore you, and wants you to know it, often turns his/her head away from you and stares down at the ground. A wrinkled forehead and a slight frown usually provide very convincing evidence that your presence is not desired.

The "Dictionary of Body Language" is broad and interesting. Some of the vocabulary follows. (Some of this information is taken from the book How To Read A Person Like A Book by Geral Nierenberg and Henry Calero):

1. Antagonism, hostility, anger and rebellion are indicated by a tight jaw. 2. Guilt and discomfort are indicated by a failure to look into a person s eyes when being spoken to. 3. Defensiveness, aggressiveness or hostility are indicated by severe and continued eye contact. 4. Defensiveness and insecurity are indicated by crossed legs, rigid body, crossed arms, clenced fist, the inability to look one in the eye when talking or the leg over a chair with the back partiall yturned to the other person. 5. Relaxation, security and rapport are indicated by uncrossed legs, attentive facial look, uncrossed arms and exposure of the palms of the hands. 6. Extreme insecurity is indicated by a squeezing of the fist, or grasping of the arms. 7. Boredom is indicated by crossed legs and kicking motion. 8. Attentiveness is indicated by a slight leaning toward the speaker and uncrossed legs. 9. Agreement is indicated by leaning toward the speaker and sitting on the edge of seat.

For the behaviors noted above to be useful signs for interpreting behavior you must combine certain signals with certian other signals. Otherwise you might make a clear misinterpretation of the meaning of the gesture.

The definitions of behavior are general and should be carefully evaluated in conjunction with other information about a person for it to be valid. For instance, some people cross their legs to relax. However, if the legs are crossed, the arms crossed and eye contact avoided, you may then interpret the behavior as indicative of personal insecurity and defensiveness.
